TIME

“they sat on the ground with him for seven days and seven nights.” – Job 2:13

I learned something this past weekend. Its not like I didn't know it already. I know, like you do, it is important to spend time with people. And yet, since we often need to be reminded of this truth, goodness and power of presence, there must be some distinction between knowing and believing.

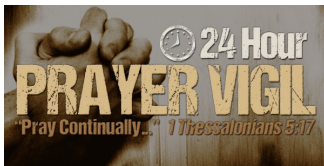

I went to a family funeral. The deceased was a relative of one of my relatives. They were close. I spent time with my grieving relatives, extra time, not just at the funeral, but after. We chatted, watched basketball, played cards, ate meals. We talked only a little about the deceased relative, or grief, or the funeral. We just were together. When I left and came back home, I reflected on how much joy, encouragement and comfort came to my relatives, not from words, but simply, from time together.

Maybe April is a time when you start thinking about summer plans, trips, adventures, outings. Be sure some of those plans include the destination - time with beloved relatives and friends. Presence is powerfully healthy for your soul and theirs.

Pastor Dan
